GERMAN BLUFF WOULD HAVE PUT
U. S. OUT SAYS SIMS

Claims U. S. Convo System
Was Weak; Many Plans
Suggested.

NONE PRACTICAL

Transportation Could Have Been Paralyzed Easily, Declares Rear Admiral.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, March 15.—A little "bluff" on the part of the Germans in 1918 at the crucial point of the war, would have paralyzed transportation of soldiers and war materials between this country and Europe, Rear Admiral Sims today told the senate naval sub-committee.

Information from authentic sources indicates that the Germans were building two heavily armored battle cruisers for a desperate last hope raid against troop ship convoys was transmitted to the navy department, Admiral Sims said, and immediately he was besieged with cablegrams from Washington, outlining various plans of action, all of which, he testified, were impracticable, although such a contingency had been under discussion for nearly a year and there had been ample time to prepare.

Little Bluff Needed.
"If the enemy had only known," said Admiral Sims, "all he need have done was to make a series of bluffs, involving little risk to himself and we would have done the rest. Shipping would have been paralyzed."

Admiral Sims discussed four plans proposed by the department for defeating Germany on the sea. They were: A protected lane through the danger zone; the blocking of German ports by sinking of ships in the entrance; mine barriers of nets and mines of types then in use; mine barriers of mines of a new type, except the last were impracticable, he declared, and much time was wasted by the insistence of the department that they be tried.

Many Schemes Advanced.
The department wished to land a "solar plexus blow" against the submarine campaign, and suggested many schemes long before rejected by the allies. Sinking old battleships and cruisers in the entrances to German harbors, Admiral Sims pointed out, would require 40 battleships and 43 cruisers and six months of preparation.

On May 11, 1917, the navy department first suggested the idea of a barrage of mines across the North Sea to trap the German ships, Admiral Sims said, and at that time he opposed the plan because the allies could not afford to divert the large number of ships and guns and huge amounts of material necessary to make the project a success, he declared, and also because the old type of mine then in use was impracticable for such a purpose. Later, when the submarine campaign was well in hand and a new type of antenna mine developed in this country and approved the idea, he said, and helped to expedite the laying of the barrage.

Prizes North Sea Barrage.
The result, the North Sea mine barrage was a magnificent achievement, the admiral said. At the time the United States entered the war Admiral Sims was not "very much better informed than the general public about actual condition in the belligerent countries."

BOYD MAY FILE
COUNTER-COMPLAINT
IN DIVORCE ACTION

Pending trial of her suit for divorce from Robert M. Boyd, 35, Anna Boyd, 29, was yesterday granted $500 a week temporary alimony in circuit court here by Judge George Grimm through her attorney, Charles Pierce. Costs of $35 for the preliminary measure were also allowed.

An attorney General Frank A. Gilbert, appearing for Boyd, protested the action on grounds that his client was merely working on a $20 a week life and board salary for his brother, John, at Madison and was not in a position to pay. He also stated that a counter suit for divorce would be instituted on grounds that on December 7, Mrs. Boyd made a signed statement in her own handwriting declaring she was tired of married life and wanted to be free to go her own way. Sailing his actions to this document, said Attorney Gilbert, stated the Jackson street flat of the couple and went to Madison, while Mrs. Boyd sold the household furnishings, which Boyd turned over to her.

The attorney also stated she insisted on working against her husband's wishes. In regard to Mrs. Boyd's charges in her complaint that an effort was made to defraud her of her dower and alimony rights in property inherited by her husband, which she valued at $15,000, Mr. Gilbert told Judge Grimm that the husband's estate was not over $8,500, and was heavily encumbered with mortgages and taxes and not liquid, and that it is being held by John Boyd, to whom it was deeded, only in trust.

One of the case is expected in a day or two.

WILSON IMPATIENT

President Irritated by Continuous Submission of Compromises.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, March 16.—The senate on Monday made Senate Lodge's substitute for article X of the peace treaty a part of the resolution of ratification, by a vote of 58 to 26.

Fourteen democrats voted with the republicans in favor of the reservation in the face of a last minute notification from President Wilson that the modified Lodge proposal entirely unacceptable.

Wilson Grows Impatient
The president, according to a report which gained wide currency, but which Senator Hitchcock said was not entirely accurate, was at no pains to conceal his impatience with democratic senators for even troubling to ask his opinion concerning the Lodge substitute.

Mr. Hitchcock sent the president a copy of the reservation late last week and asked his opinion of it. Though he denied on Monday that the president had written him a letter in reply, Senator Hitchcock said that his information left no doubt in his mind that he was right when he anticipated rejection of the proposal by the president.

Didn't Write Letter
The story, which emanated, both from the White House and from senators, was that the president, on Monday, had written Mr. Hitchcock a letter, but quickly wrote on the margin of the reservation, "This is not acceptable to me."

Mr. Hitchcock's letter and the reservation, grew so impatient over the repeated submission of "compromise" reservations, that he did not want to write Mr. Hitchcock a letter, but quickly wrote on the margin of the reservation, "This is not acceptable to me."

A year ago it was generally believed prices in wearing apparel would be more reasonable. Had you carefully followed the labor problems in the mills and factories with the advance in prices of labor, shorter hours, under production, etc., you would realize prices would not go down. In view of higher prices, especially in silks, we bought six months ahead of previous seasons. After our orders were placed and merchandise paid for to insure deliveries, Silk Waists advanced $2.00 to $5.00 each; Skirts $3.00 to $8.00; Dresses $5.00 to $15.00; in fact not a single article we sell can be bought now for the price we bought them at. Manufacturer's prices are set for Fall and in plushes alone show an advance of 40% to 65% above 1919. We have the most carefully selected and wonderful stock of merchandise we have ever shown. ## St. Peter Had a Wife, Here's Why

One whose initials are W. H. M. was sorely puzzled over the fact that St. Peter, according to the Bible, was a married man and at the same time first pope of the Roman Catholic church. W. H. M. was of the opinion that all priests, bishops, and popes had to take the vow of celibacy. This is Frederic J. Huskin's answer to W. H. M. given out by the Gazette information bureau at Washington.

"From the beginning of the Christian church it was the custom for bishops, priests and deacons to renounce marriage at consecration. It was not made obligatory, however, and men who were already married at the time of ordination were not required to separate from their wives, until the end of the fourth century when Pope Siricius forbade the clergy to marry and ordered the separation from their wives of priests already married. This accounts for the fact that St. Peter could have been first head of the Christian church and also a married man."

Rockford College has man president

ROCKFORD COLLEGE HAS MAN PRESIDENT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Rockford, Ill. — Dr. William Arthur Maddox, the new president of Rockford college and the first male president this oldest girls' college in the middle west ever had, said in an address to the student body that preservation of the nation in this time of flux and unrest lies with the American college.

"Our safety does not lie in business prosperity or legislation," said Dr. Maddox, "but in the multiplication of people who think straight and live on a high plane. We must preserve a wholesome idealism in business, politics, religion, and family and a wholesome idealism is always based on wholesome ideas."

"We should measure our ideals by their efficiency that they may not be mere dreams or sentimentalities. They must be high and definite—high or we shall lose our way among the many paths inviting us and definite lest they melt into the skyline and be lost."

Mrs. Cora Gleason and children visited at the Oliver Gleason home in Janesville Sunday.

FORWARD, JANESVILLE!

To make Janesville a better place in which to live and in which to do business, the Gazette pledges itself to work for and support these things:

Hoping survey to discourage exorbitant rentals; encouragement of building more houses; appraisal of property values so that rent profiteers may be made to pay the increased amount of taxes.

Open roads in the country 365 days of the year; better roads for mail, express and support of the road building plans; better streets and more paved streets in the city.

A market pavilion in the city which may also be used for many other purposes by farmers and livestock producers.

A community building to be used for auditorium, sports, meetings, rest rooms, and also as a building memorial for soldiers.

Open the churches seven days a week and stop economic waste in room and time. Make basement meeting places for the young, and provide gymnasium facilities.

Build a real home for the girls who come here to work.

Open the fair grounds this year as a recreation park with tennis courts and other play apparatus. Establish parks and playgrounds.

Better the street car service as population increases.

MORE GARDENS THIS SUMMER.

There will be greater need of gardens this summer than ever before. Nowhere has the high cost of labor hit as it has on this farm. Nowhere is labor so scarce. Also the farmer cannot compete with industry in the labor market. The result will be that without intent, but compelled by necessity, the farmer will have to curtail his production.

In Janesville and in other cities, there are acres of land in small plots that should be tilled. We have seen the price of potatoes go up in the last three months to heights which would have made every bushel raised in the gardens most profitable. Out of a small garden there may be produced enough beets, beans and other smaller vegetables so that by canning, a family will have garden food all the winter. Of course it requires some effort, but that is nothing compared to the prices that will be demanded with a small farm production this year.

We face a real danger. We may be in the same position as our European brethren in a year or so with the lack of products in the market. It is criminal that it could be so, but facts are before us. Industry has taken the man and boy from the farm. There is only one thing that can take the place of this lack of farm labor and save the family from hunger, and that is the utilization of the wasted yards and gardens of the city to the limit.

DAYLIGHT SAVING AGAIN.

Some of the aldermen are skeptical about the inauguration of daylight saving for Janesville. They say they are in doubt as to its being wanted. That is an easy matter to determine. Why not let the people vote on it at the spring election? It is not too late now. The cost will be merely that of printing a separate ballot. The election machinery is at hand and there is no additional expense in clerks, inspectors or judges. A mere resolution by the council is sufficient. Then the aldermen who are in doubt will have the information at hand. The trouble with many questions arising in municipal management is that the aldermen do not get close enough to the people. It would have been a good plan to have let the people vote on the pole ordinance. No, the council is not obliged to submit it. It can listen to corporation attorneys and make up its mind from that manner of presentation, but frequently that is counter to what the people would demand, words they permitted the referendum.

In all these things it will be well for the voters of the city to jog the memory of what the aldermen have done—especially the alderman from your own ward, who is asking to be sent back. Has he been with the people? Has he been a listener to the wishes of the larger number? Corporations have rights and should be treated fairly and with consideration, but when they are given special privileges or permitted to act contrary to benefits for the general public, then an alderman who has given these things support is inviting his ward voters to lay him on the shelf. That is where he belongs.

And it might be well to ask again what the aldermen will do in the matter of daylight saving.

MONEY BY THE BILLION.

Statements of the banks of Rock county, issued last week, disclosed the fact that there had been great increases in the deposits and that for banking purposes there was more money than ever before in the history of the city and county.

Some of the facts in reference to deposits and clearings in the United States are startling. New York is the world's great clearing house now. London once was. The war has changed the money center to this side of the Atlantic. World's money values are fixed by conditions in America. In 1910 the bank clearings at New York amounted to $102,000,000,000. This was a stupendous sum. But in 1919 the clearings had doubled 1910, amounting to $214,000,000,000.

We have cheap money—much cheaper than in 1910. The purchasing power of the dollar has been reduced very largely, but this will not make the difference in the growth of the figures for clearings shown in 1919.

HIGH LIVING IN 1860

A copy of Harper's Weekly for 1860 states that the highest prices in the United States prevailed at the new silver diggings at Washoe, where beef sold for 25 cents a pound, and pork for 35 cents. Coffee was way up—60 cents a pound, while sugar was the only thing higher than in 1920 at 60 cents a pound. People were grumbling about Washoe at that time, too. The U. S. A. is one big Washoe in 1920.

THE FALL OF MAN.

According to the learned professor, Dr. Hicelcon, of Chicago, the advent of woman suffrage and the elimination of alcohol is going to make a race of sissies of the male. Without his beverage to kick him around and other attributes of the masculine, he will soon be making tattling, reading Mary Jane Holmes, Elinor Glynn, and talking faksetto. Dr. Hicelcon expects to see men going about with low necks, wearing pants up to the knees, trimmings with delicate lace. And all because beer of at least 2 1/2 percent and whiskey of several more percents cannot be had freely at the bars.

JUST FOLKS

THE KICK UNDER THE TABLE.

After a man has been married awhile
And his wife has grown used to his manner and style,
When she knows from the twinkle that lights up his eye
The thoughts he is thinking, the wherefore and why,
And just what he'll say, and just what he'll do,
And is sure that he'll make a bad break or he's through,
She has one little trick that she'll work when she's able,
She takes a sly kick at him under the table.

He may fancy the story he's telling is true,
Or he's doing the thing which is proper to do,
To may fancy he's holding his own with the rest,
The life of the party and right at his best,
When quickly he learns to his utter dismay,
That he mustn't say what he's started to say,
He is stopped at the place where he hoped to begin,
By his wife, who has taken a kick at his shin.

If he picks the wrong fork for the salad, he knows
That fact by the feel of his wife's slipped toes.
If he's started a bit of untellable news,
On the calf of his leg there is planted a bruise.
Oh, I wonder sometimes what would happen to me
If the wife were not seated just where she could be
On guard every minute to watch every trick
And keep me in line all the time with her kick.

and women are voting for or against "Dago" Pete, boss of the Nineteenth ward.

For the benefit of the loathed doctor it may be said that races of strong, virile men have grown up in this world undaunted by the absence of booze. Also the professor, who talks like a member of the United Societies, may know that the end of many an empire and of many a dynasty in the past, was caused not by cutting out the alcohol, and all the vice that goes with it, but by making drunkenness the chief end of man. Anyhow we will take a chance.

Reading the story of Henry P. Janes' vicissitudes on his trip from Racine county to the present site of Janesville, named after him, in 1836, reminds one forcibly of the condition of Rock county roads in 1920.

All the presidential candidates are in, it would seem, except William J. Villa, who is the favorite son of the State of Terror.

Germany's new chancellor who precipitated the coup d'etat, was born in New York. That's probably where he learned the coup d'etat business, as he was working in Wall street for a time.

That Illinois school superintendent who got away with $16,000 of the school money, was apparently trying to demonstrate forcibly that teachers were underpaid.

After looking longingly on the new revolution in Germany the late emperor discovered that the "Welcome" sign on the door mat was still turned face down.

We await the statement that Ebert and the others played a game of skat to decide who would be the boss in Germany.

Those politicians who have been playing political cards without the queens in the deck will have to learn the game all over again.

The English pound weighs about ten ounces.

Their Opinions

Bereaved friends and relatives of the late demon rum are welcome to what solace they can derive from such current headlines as: "Many Vermont Towns Go Wet." The inhabitants of any towns that may elect to "go wet" are likewise welcome to all the malt, vinous or spirituous uplift they can acquire, which is not, one fears, a very great deal. For a town to arise in its might and vote itself wet is, in the face of the eighteenth amendment, something like writing a check for $1,000,000 against a bank account of 30 cents.

If a town had nothing else to do there is no reason why it should not hold a local option election. But the town's anti-saloon element would be foolish to waste time going to the polls. What special point would there be in the drys rallying around to fight a battle that was won a year ago? The personal libertarians can be pardoned for their eagerness to march to their voting places and go on record in favor of the little brown jug, for any showing of strength they may make does its bit toward refurbishing the bedraggled plumes of a lost cause.

There is just one thing that can bring back the joys and benevolence of the barroom to this country. That is a decision of the supreme court declaring the eighteenth amendment unconstitutional. Until they can get that the devotees of whisky may as well save their breath to cool their coconuts. Vermont local option can not bring back booze, the governor of New Jersey can not do it, the presidential election can not do it. There was a time, years ago, when it was in the power of the liquor people to prevent prohibition, but it is too late to begin now.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

If these New York socialists violated the espionage act, why not try them in court instead of the assembly? —La Crosse Tribune.

Training Hotel Help

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Washington, March 16.—To Washington's collection of colleges, young women's schools and business schools has just been added a unique institution—the only hotel training school in the United States. The hotel training school does not, as might carelessly be inferred, teach people who expect to live in hotels how to order a balanced lunch, or when to jolt with the waiter. We heard of the school we rather expected to find would be bell hoppers learning to hop and ring bells according to the latest scientific methods. But the school turned out to be something quite different. It trains its students for executive positions—managers, assistants, hostesses, housekeepers, and head accountants.

60 Percent Untrained.
At least 90 percent of the hotel industry of the world (not the U. S. W.), the business manager tells us, is done by untrained, unskilled workmen, who belong to the hire and fire class. Of the remaining 10 percent, five are in what used to be called the apprentice class. They have some knowledge of the hotel, but no particular job. It is the other 5 percent, which is highly trained, that the school is interested in increasing.

For fifty years, the manager explained, "the hotel fraternity has been talking about the need for a school to train hotel workers. Some mathematical shark has figured out that every employee taken into a hotel costs the management $150. That is the law to the organization. To the recruit gets to be worth anything. Then usually the ambitious employee has to work about 15 years before he reaches a position of authority. To offset the loss and to prepare their employees for advancement, some of the large hotels have their own systems of training, such as the well-known classes at the Waldorf-Astoria under the leadership of the famous Oscar Tschirky, who just opened at Washington, is the first to be established as an independent institution covering the entire hotel business.

Such a school in Switzerland. The only other school of the kind, in Switzerland, and in under the management of a prospective hotel manager must pass an examination before he is granted a license. The Swiss institution is quite different from the Washington training school.

The school itself is a series of lecture rooms with blackboards and long rows of chairs, rest rooms, and business offices—rather like any business school.

"We teach our pupils," the principal explained, "all about the 151 positions in a modern hotel, starting with the bellboy and going up to the manager. Then, when they enter hotel service, they are not merely familiar with one branch, but they understand the whole system."

Learn how to keep a clean home—tell them where to shop, and furnish advice, if asked. Besides this, she takes charge of any and all matters that may come up, helping him to meet his appointments, and get in touch with people, or offering whatever assistance he needs.

Hostess Becomes Important.
The "hostess," says the training school principal, "is coming to be an important position in a big or even a medium sized hotel. She gives it the homelike, intimate touch."

The assistant to the manager is not an assistant manager, but sort of a diplomat and a student of human nature as the hostess, and her forte is settling matters that would take up too much of the manager's valuable time.

These are the newer executive positions, and consequently the hotel training school is interested in their possibilities. The school business manager thinks that there is lots of room at the top of any line of business.

Before the war, he says, hotel employees were mostly foreigners. But when the war stopped immigration there began to be more Americans, and more and more Americans stepped in, especially where the higher positions were open or could be most quickly attained. Now he says, the hotel men want to Americanize the business.

Seven Planks in Hotel.
There are seven big fundamentals of hotel organization," he concluded. "Service, cleanliness, efficiency, economy, courtesy, hospitality, and honesty. They must be applied to every position in the hotel force."

The reporter scribbled these significant words on his notepad and forgot to ask: Wonder if a head waiter can be taught his impeccable dignity, or does he have to be born that way?

As well, his salary is $17,500 per annum, but he has no vacation, no expenses or entertainment. It cost former Ambassador Page, who preceded Ambassador Davis, more than his salary to pay merely the heat and maintenance of the American embassy in London. Similar conditions prevail in the case of our ambassadors to other countries.

2. Of the large bodies of water, which contains the most salt?
A. The Dead Sea is one of the saltiest bodies of water in the world. A ton of water from it contains 197 pounds of salt. In a ton of water from the Caspian Sea there are but seven pounds of salt. A ton of water from the Atlantic Ocean there are thirty-one pounds of salt.

3. Was Admiral Grayson, President Wilson's physician, ever in command of a battle ship? C. A. S.

A. He is not a line officer. Admiral Grayson is a physician of the medical corps, and his naval corps officers are non-combatant and do not have command of ships.

Q. What is the weight of a standard silver dollar? W. F. G.

Q. How does the salary of the ambassador from Great Britain to the United States compare with that of our ambassador to Great Britain? N. F.
A. Sir Auckland Geddes, who has just been appointed British ambassador to the United States, will get $12,500 a year salary and an allowance of $8,700 for entertaining. In addition to this he is furnished with a pretentious mansion and the expense of the embassy is paid by the British government. ROY E. MOULTON

A motion picture cameraman has no illusions and he makes no effort to hide his lack of illusions from the parties concerned.

The other day we were sent for to be "shot in the studio," this being a sort of vital place, as it were, and everything was pleasant and agreeable until we met this chap, the cameraman. He meant to be pleasant, too, no doubt, but he was an outpoken as was Wilson when dictating letters to Secretary Lansing.

Before he posed us he looked us over with great attention.

"You should be a great film subject," he said. "The scenario will count for nothing. The face will do it all."

Temporarily we were complimented and began to feel like a young Greek god.

"It will be a tough job, won't it?" asked the director anxiously.

"The subject is full of inequalities," the director said. "I don't think I have ever worked on one which was so promising."

EPIDEMICS PROVE YOUR DRUGGIST'S SERVICE

YOU have seen and appreciated the labors of the overworked doctor. Have you thought of the retail druggist? He, too, has been overworked.

Perhaps you think he has worked long hours because it was good business. In a way it was good business, and it is true that he is a business man. He must be to make a living.

But he is more than that. He is a man who has had long and exacting professional training, and his ability is tested and certified to by the state before he is allowed to call himself a pharmacist and fill your doctor's prescriptions.

He realizes his professional responsibility and his obligation to his community, and that is why he has stuck to his post when mere profit would not have kept him there. You depend upon him as a professional man in an emergency. Do you support him as a business man when the emergency is past? Do you buy from him the many articles of merchandise he has to sell, and that you can buy from him as well as from others?

This is not an appeal to sentiment or charity. No man wants business on those terms. It is simply a common sense suggestion that it is worth your while to make it possible for a man, whose services you need, to prosper in your community.

YOUTH PAYS FINE FOR ATTEMPT TO STEAL CARBURETOR

Twenty-year-old Edward Petrovick, Milwaukee, Wis., presented a changed attitude in municipal court today readily admitting an attempt to steal a $15 carburetor in the shape of a U. S. car. He was fined $5 and costs amounting to $2.50 which he paid rather than take the alternative of 7 days in jail.

When arraigned yesterday Petrovick wanted to plead guilty but denied attempting to steal the part. He signed the following confession today:

"I picked up the carburetor near the center of the building, where it was lying next to the engine and hid it inside the box about 8 p. m., March 14.

"About 11 p. m., after lunch, I went back and picked up the carburetor from the place where I had hidden it. After I had picked it up, I was caught by the watchman. I tried to take the carburetor home because I thought my mother could use it on her car.

The arrest of Petrovick came as a result of added vigilance on the part of the Saxon police department which is determined to put an end to petty thefts which it is learned have been going on inside the plant the past few months.

Served One Sentence.
Declaring her husband assaulted her at least once a month for the nine years of their married life, and that on January 5 last, he was placed under the commitment act in Beloit on the same charges, Armeta Smith, 27, was granted a divorce on the ground of cruelty. Gaby, 29, telegraph operator at Milton related in getting a divorce from Bertha L. Gaby, 24, for desertion.

"She was entertaining her sister and having a good time," when I left to go to work," he said, "and when I got back home I found a note saying, 'What's mine is my own.' I took what I wanted and went to sister's." She gave no intimation that she was going to do this," he declared, "and we had no quarrel."

Have You Made Selections of the New Suit or Coat for Easter Yet?

Have you the new blouse, the new gloves and the other new things that custom expects of you on Easter Sunday?

In all departments of this store we are prepared to give you efficient service in the selection of wearing apparel for spring. Right now the collection of New Spring Coats and Suits are at their best and offer splendid values.

Coats May be Long or Short

Many will prefer the jaunty short coats, but for those who prefer the longer ones we've provided too, and so the showing of both long and short coats is extremely pleasing.

It seems that all the whims of Fashions are represented here in this collection of coats. You will see collars of various types—some coats full flaring in the back, with and without belts—some will have slash pockets to place things in—some will be knee length, some longer and some slightly shorter—any of them are good in Fashion's eyes—it's just for you to pick the one that's best for you.

Priced from $19.75 to $69.75

The New Hats

are also awaiting your approval. Come in and try them on. There are jaunty little push back and turban effects, also the larger models for dressier wear.

Little Things That are So Stunning in the New Suits

Collars do unexpected things. Long slender collars roll; slim lay-over collars announce a note of feminine daintiness.

By way of trimming for the suit the belt stands forth, first as a standard of trim efficiency. Belts come in dozens of new and striking forms, oddly arranged and oddly fastened.

For further trimming the dressier suits resort to all manner of rich devices—braid, stitchery, pipings, cordings, plaits, tucks, buttons, buckles and silk embroideries.

SKILLFUL PLOT OF RICH GERMAN

Revolt Said to Be Result of Plan for Wealthy to Dodge Indemnities.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1920, by Janesville Gazette.)

Washington, March 16.—Plenty of theory but not much fact. That is the most that can be said thus far concerning Washington's opinion of the new German revolution. Where the wish is father to the thought, the upheaval in Germany is regarded as confirmation and justification of the large variety of opinions expressed on Capitol Hill during the last 12 months of treaty discussion. Wilson defenders say it proves that the president was right when he said that chaos would come to Europe if America withheld her aid from the enforcement of the peace treaty's obligations. Former President Taft, not exactly a Wilson apologist but a staunch friend of the treaty and league of nations, says the same thing.

An Internal Affair. But the irreconcilable opponents of the treaty and league call the German revolution an internal affair—entirely divorced both in cause and effect from the peace treaty. In fact, they say, the revolution is a purely internal affair, and the German government is not bound to bear out this view to a certain extent. The revolution, they say, is a purely internal affair, and the German government is not bound to bear out this view to a certain extent. The revolution, they say, is a purely internal affair, and the German government is not bound to bear out this view to a certain extent.

But while friends of the treaty insist none of this German trouble would have happened if the league of nations had been set up, implacable foes of the pact say it is a direct consequence of the "crisis" and harsh terms of peace imposed upon Germany, which is the way Senator Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania, himself a former secretary of state, expressed it several months ago, only to be denounced immediately as a pro-German. But recent expressions and comments from Great Britain have indicated that the same second thought of the peace-makers has been one of apprehension that they may have imposed upon the vanquished too terms of peace which made it impossible for him to earn the money to pay his indemnity.

Rich to Get From Under. Indeed, not a few people here look upon the German revolution as the skillful plot of the wealthy classes in Germany who would bear the greatest burden of the indemnity to get out from under. Already the new Berlin government has set itself up as a judge of what terms of the treaty it will fulfill—those that seem just and reasonable. This is a virtual hint of nullification, and is admittedly having a disquieting effect here. For the truth is the associated powers are not in a position immediately to make Germany pay. America has about 15,000 troops on the Rhine. England has not many more. France has scarcely 100,000. In different parts of Germany are many hundreds of thousands of troops, large numbers of whom are mobilized. But Germany is without munitions, and military opinion here seems to doubt that she is coming into trouble with the allies on the Rhine. Is it rather an analogy to the situation in Russia, when the bolsheviks agreed to the treaty of Brest-Litovsk and assumed an attitude of passive resistance to the enforcement of its terms.

Enforcing Peace. It would cost the allies a good deal to enforce peace upon Germany, and the government of the latter probably knows it. America's army has one home across the Atlantic. The British army has gone to the far ends of the earth. The French army is practically demobilized. Only economic pressure can make Germany behave, and she thinks the pressure of the peace terms is worse than anything that could possibly be done to her if she threw up her hands in despair and declined to carry out the terms of the treaty. There is reason to believe that Germany did hope for the influence of the United States coupled with that of Great Britain to effect the terms which France was so instrumental in imposing upon her. Moreover, the election pledges of Lloyd George to "make Germany pay" have now been superseded by a strong labor sentiment which openly advocates a revision of the terms of peace with Germany.

Open Up Russia. Many of the financial people in our government think the key to the whole business lies in Russia. They say the associated powers have made a grave mistake in hesitating to open Russia to trade. This would have furnished markets for German goods from Germany, France, Great Britain

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY.

With a great honking or horn and flourish of crimson auto veil, good old Athena drove up to the front door just as the sun was setting in a sea of orange light. It was so good to see her after all these weeks that I lunged on her neck and hugged like a silly—just out of gladness.

"Well, well, stop ruining my best pongee motor coat and let me look at you," cried Athena, holding me off at arm's length. "Fine and fit, and glowing like a fresh rose!" Now tell me more of this scheme, Jim's up to—developing amusement parks and making fortunes."

Athena flung off her hat, coat, veil and gloves, pushed her hair back and settled herself without further preliminaries for a good gabfest. I told all I know of Jim's project. Athena listened attentively, squinting up her shrewd eyes over some detail now and then and asking many questions.

"Sounds good to me," she vouchsafed when I had finished. "Why do you hesitate?"

"It would be so dreadful to fail, Athena. All this courage gone. Our home broken up. Having to begin all over again, and with—Jimmie, Junior, to think of!" I argued.

"But, dear, success is all a matter of your mental attitude," argued Athena decisively. "Make up your mind it will turn out splendidly. Keep that idea in your head, boost Jim up with optimistic talk, show him you have confidence in his ability and keep your doubts and nervousness away from yourself. If you do that he won't fail. He has a heap of sense and knows his profession. Why, the very name of Silverdell Limited sounds successful. Carrotstick! It's well located, big and breezy and accessible by trolley line. What more do you want but capital and hard work? I tell you it will turn out well. Now it's up to you to do your part. Keep your chin high, take care of yourself and stick to me."

"But you're in New York, Ath. I can't. No, I'm not in New York; I'm here, Gooselet."

"You don't mean—you don't mean you're going to stay with me a bit?"

"Why not? Can't you get a job? John's writing a book and wants to be rid of me for a while."

I rushed at her, flung my arms about her wily, capable, cheery figure, and as I did I felt strength and confidence, courage and enthusiasm flow through me. I suddenly saw the whole project clearly. I got Athena's "mental attitude." My mind was made up. I would say yes to Jim's scheme and do my full share toward sweeping the undertaking to success.

"The only thing that troubles me now, Ath," I hesitated, "is the ordeal of Athens."

Athena interrupted me in her characteristic blurt. "I have seen to all that manner. 'Now, Ann,' she held up her hand in warning. 'I tell you I had been investigating something? Well, I have. Now that you've met the real issue—Jim's scheme—like a little duck, you'll jump to your problem. I've worked it all out. The answer is twilight sleep. Now, now don't make objections till you've seen its workings.'"

"Athens, dear! I've read a lot about it, but I don't understand very well."

"You'll understand better after you and Jim and I go to New York and have a talk with the doctor who has specialized in it for years. I have made an engagement with him. We go tomorrow. I could only hug my dear, old friend in speechless gratitude."

PATENT LEATHER TRIMS THIS COAT

keeper said: "They are wearing everything this year." It is just about true, too. You can find strictly tailored suits or fancy embroidered silk ones. You may wear a polo coat everywhere or you may get a cape wrap of some gorgeous material. You may wear pleated plaid skirts or plain colored straight ones. And the color range seems limitless. Here is a sports outfit which is decidedly different from the ordinary models. The skirt is a plain straight model made of the finest of white flannel, but the coat is the really distinctive garment. It is made of a rich velvet shade of navy blue. It hangs full and loose from the shoulders with kimono sleeves and a collar which may be worn low or fastened high about the neck. The sleeves are embroidered almost to the elbow with patent leather applied in novel design and the leather is also used to trim the pockets. It is an unusual and distinctive model, but it is practical withal.

Apple Salad—Cook apples in syrup made from one cup sugar, two cups water and six worth cinnamon candies until tender. When cold, arrange on crisp lettuce leaves, with sweet salad dressing.

Scalloped Tomatoes—Put in a dish plaited skirts and solo coats are the first and foremost in the fashion parade. This means that many of these styles will be seen everywhere. Although there could be scarcely anything more charming than the full skirts of some pretty plaid and the youthful boyish solo coats they will no doubt become too popular to suit some people.

The person who wants something different, however, will have no trouble in finding it, for, as one shop-toutinhead of race degeneracy.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Q.—Doctor, do you think it makes you fat to take yeast? I have gained twenty pounds since I began taking yeast for my acne pimples, but I feel fine and the pimples are about gone.

A.—Yeast is a compressed cake of active yeast, and it is usually taken after each meal, in milk usually, for about twelve weeks, and I rather like it.

ANSWER—Some individuals gain considerable weight while taking yeast.

Junior's Should Swim.
I am a junior high school girl eleven years old. Would you advise me to take swimming lessons this time of year? (P. L. C.)

ANSWER—By all means, yes, little lady. I honestly think such lessons will help as much in your education as physical geography or algebra's most atrocious complexities will.

It is all right for girls to smoke, play basketball and do all kinds of circus stunts in a community. You know they sometimes have pretty hard falls, and I always thought it was a pity for girls to do such things. (Mrs. S. M. C.)

ANSWER—It is not only all right, but it is all wrong if they don't have such opportunities. The sickly, fainting, body-weird, one-taking, don't-get-your-feet-wet type of girl is as extinct as the celebrated dodo.

one cup water, butter size of egg, pinch of salt, cornstarch to thicken, vanilla to taste.

In the upper part of your double boiler cream sugar, butter, eggs, vanilla, milk, water and salt. Heat and thicken with cornstarch. Remove from fire. Have ready two baked pie crusts and mix these turn butter-scorch filling. Beat the whites of eggs and spread over tops of pies. Bake in moderate oven until nicely browned.

COOKING HINTS

In making apple pie use a small lump of butter, makes them very delicious. Tatin pie, use butter size of egg, mix flour in it until stiff, stir in boiling raisins; does not make flour lumpy in pies.

If you use the water in which fresh vegetables are cooked, or the juices from the can when you cook canned peas, beans, asparagus, for the gravies instead of making them of just water or milk, you will find them far more delicious. Even potato juice is good.

WOMEN TO PLAY FAIR IN POLITICS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago.—Women are going into politics with a very different attitude of mind than the men. Ida M. Gibson of the women's bureau, national democratic committee, said after a speaking tour of Indiana and Illinois. "Women of both parties realize they have a lot to learn," she said, "and they are more open minded than the men."

"They deplore the methods often used by men in politics and are more inclined to be fair. On my trip I spoke to republican women in republican clubs and a number of these women told me that in spite of their party they were in favor of an open mind at the polls."

"The suffragists aren't the only ones who are going in for politics. In fact many of the women who are assuming leadership in Illinois and Indiana were never connected with the suffrage movement. Politicians will be surprised when they see what a large number of women are taking up their duties as voters."

A bachelor says matrimony is a sort of training school in which some women learn the art of drawing almonds.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of sixteen and am going with a young man eighteen years of age. I love him very much and it seemed as though he cared for me until several weeks ago when we were both at a dance. He did not seem angry at me because he danced with me and seemed as jolly as ever.

At supper time he took another girl to supper, but after supper he asked to take me home. I went home with him, but I acted as though I was angry because he took the other girl to supper. When he got home I asked him whether he loved me any more and he said he did. He kissed me goodnight and went away. But I have never had a date with him since. He doesn't seem to be angry for he speaks to me and dances with me at dances.

The night he took me home I told him some things about this other girl that I should not have told, but I didn't think of it until afterward. Would you write him a letter and ask him to forgive my words, or would you advise me to pay no more attention to him?

Pay no more attention to the boy. A letter would not make him think more of you, only less. Learn from this experience that you should not run down one person to another, especially in a fit of jealousy.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a school girl of fifteen. There is a young man whom I admire very much in school. I have been with him several times and he has proved himself a perfect gentleman and one worthy of respect.

While with me he seemed to care for me. Lately he has been cool and indifferent toward me, giving all of his attention to another girl. I still have the same attitude toward him as before.

Please tell me what I should do.

and if there is any chance of his ever coming back to me with the same feeling as before.

ROSEY CHEEKS.

It is said there is nothing so dead as dead love. I think, therefore, that you should give up hope that the young man will come back. Keep busy and try not to think about him. One of these days you will find yourself interested in some one else. At fifteen you are much too young to have a sweetheart anyway.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl fifteen years of age. I have been going with a boy of about the same age. We kept steady company until he came to see me one evening. When he left that night he was just the same as usual.

The next evening when asked to come to see me he refused and said he did not care for me. Do you think he has grown tired of me? I like him and would like to keep his friendship. What do you think I should do? I have written to him several times since then, but he ignores my mail.

Do you think he has lost all interest in me? I know he cared a great deal for me at first, but he did not tell me. His actions spoke louder than words. Please tell me your opinion of a boy like that.

There is nothing you can do to regain the friendship of this boy. At the age of fifteen it would be wise to forget about boys and enjoy study, reading and girls.

THE MORON WOMAN—II

Think there must be something lacking in the man who falls for the animated doll type of young woman, the pretty goddess, the blooming spring flower, with her defective equipment of gray matter, the moron woman. Love, he imagines, impels him to marry his dainty, innocent, baby-face, sweet little girl. He will realize, when it is too late, that love is a hallucination of the mind. Sensuality alone drives him into this bad bargain. The man lacks judgment, self-control. He is probably something of a philanthropist. It is notorious that the moron lacks the rake, the unprincipled animal, prefers undeveloped buds; he seeks vaguely for a victim beneath his own mental plane—for him is a little ashamed of his conduct, after all. Some such motive is concerned in the foolishness which the full-brained young man calls "falling in love with one of these subnormalers. Well do our pandering theatrical film magnates know their psychology. They serve in the blooming young female morons as their choicest bids for the patronage of the degenerate manhood of the country. Not only that, they flaunt every possible appeal to sensuality on the public billboards, and no one seems to care a little bit damn for the moral effect, the immoral effect, such suggestions must have on children everywhere.

Assume that a high grade man marries a butterfly girl, a moron, under the spell of sensual infatuation. Right there hereditarily enters the problem. The man has ambitions to succeed in the world; he hopes to make his mark in his vocation, whatever it may be. In a few years his butterfly wife becomes a handicapped rather than a helpmeet; she hasn't brains, she is inept, shallow, a drag on his career.

If children come, they are likely to inherit the mother's defect. The children turn out badly. Something lacking. They shrink into the background. They betray various little moral deficiencies. If they manage to worry along in school somehow, until adolescence or early adulthood, they are likely to commit some erratic offense, bringing shame to their parents and scandal to the community.

The moron woman is the type of woman featured offensively on the stage, in the movies, in the salacious fiction of the day. Her undeveloped mentality—psychological tests usually show that she has the mind of a child or of a ten-year-old youngster by her admirer for maidenly innocence. I soon discovers his mistake.

The young man of judgment does not wish to attract the attention of a butterfly, brainless type of girl who appeals only to his sensual side. She will become a nuisance about his neck if he makes the mistake of marrying her. Her bloom fades in a few short years. Her mind never improves itself. Her children are not likely to be quite normal. She should not multiply. Her kind had better be permitted to die out. She is a

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.
St. Louis, Mo.—Auctioning apartments to the highest bidder is the newest measure several St. Louis real estate owners are using to obtain maximum returns on their property.

The City Complaint board has received many letters to this effect from disgruntled tenants. One of the complainants, Charles V. Brady, declared his rent had been increased from $17.50 to $52.50 in the last two years.

While almost everybody wants something for nothing, few people are satisfied with what they get that way. Even a man of sense should have enough sense to build his house upon a rock.

If you think you can tell by the taste, try that.

DIXIE Margarine is the new, full butter-flavored margarine just created by Wm. J. Moxley, the founder of the Margarine Industry in America. Pasteurized into purity in every ingredient.

It takes an expert butter taster to tell the difference between Dixie and good creamy butter.

Dixie is also higher in food value than butter as all Food Experts agree.

Therefore, buy it and try it today and save money on your butter bills from now on.

Clammy sweat broke out all over me as I thought of what he might do. He might have twenty accomplices—enough to play the game to a finish. Where could I go tonight? To a hotel? I didn't have any luggage. To a friend's house? I could have to explain—and I couldn't go over to Philadelphia to my brother's, but I didn't have money enough in my purse to pay my fare. And I got a hunch that I'd been robbed in my flat? Or could I take them with me, and perhaps be kidnapped, robbed and then murdered? I kept my mouth shut. After what I'd seen of him I now felt him capable of anything.

With these thoughts I staggered out into the night, a not very long walk as I passed—five minutes to eight, and I had come in at a quarter to six. I saw spies everywhere. I was afraid to go home. I didn't know what else to do. I knew I ought to communicate with Mrs. DeLario, but I didn't dare—even to try to reach her. I was sure she might make it the worse for her.

In this frame of mind I reached Broadway—here at least I felt temporarily safe—and staggered right into the arms of Billy Rivers. "Billy!" I cried, as soon as I saw who it was. "My rescuer!" For next to having a thick policeman to take care of me I'd rather have a thin reporter. Billy might not be able to save my life now, but he and his paper would at least avenge my death.

"Billy, where are you taking me?"

"Clifton Springs this morning. Meeting you now is what you might call—"

"Winding your aunt from home," I suggested.

"Much better than any aunt I ever had," returned Billy, gravely. "Which didn't mean much, since all he had in the world was an only mother. He added: 'Say—I was just thinking of you, too. I was going to call on you, and some really truly advice. While I was over there in Paris I sort of got the idea that I'd try my hand at the literary game. I was thinking so much I was afraid to go home.' Billy, take me to a show to-night—any old show."

Man Has Miraculous Escape

"I was told by our family physician that I could not live without an operation, as my liver and gall sack were in such a condition. I set the day to go to the hospital, but then I saw the advertisement of May's Wonderful Remedy. Since taking it I am feeling like a new man. I am sure I never could have survived an operation." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. It will convince of its efficacy.

The Daily Novelle

THE SATISFACTORY SUBSTITUTE

Pitchburg's musical element was rife with excitement.

Gitta Spoor, the world's greatest baritone (and the posters said so) was to sing in the Pitchburg Opera House that night. The tickets were high, but the higher the price the lower were the tickets, so most of the people sat high. One could hear better, they said.

The house was crowded. All the "standing-room only" signs had been taken down.

Mrs. Offe-Serech had sung

"The World's Greatest Baritone" and had been ready to inflict some encores.

Josip Slomkowski had played his last encore with such bravura appassionando that the piano reared up on its hind legs in agony from the force of the blows.

And now the audience clamored madly and howled for Spoor, their beloved singer—the gifted one—to appear.

But behind the scenes a different scene was taking place. The great baritone was wringing his hands in his misery, for he was terribly temperamental.

The great baritone, Gitta Spoor, had refused to sing in the "Catalogue" from Stokowski, unless the great impresario guaranteed him an extra ten thousand for the popular solo, which, as the impresario cried out, was twice what the seats would bring.

But he, Gitta Spoor, should sing for a paltry ten thousand. Dubois!

Get another singer! Fish!

Ten minutes later the great impresario stepped on the footlights and announced: "The great baritone, Gitta Spoor, will sing the 'Catlogue' from behind the scenes as

Then while the thunderous ap-ran behind the curtain and put on a the famous "Catalogue" solo amid the audience.

And this was on thousands saved,

an impresario's honor unsmirched,

Janessville High Ends Basketball Season Saturday

TWO GAMES BOOKED AGAINST EDGERTON

Slump of Locals Believed to Be Over—Are Determined to Cop Victory.

Janessville high school will play its last game of the season at Edgerton Saturday night. It will be a double-header, both the first and second teams going to the Tobacco city to bring back the season from the two Edgerton high fives.

While expectations are for a victory, every indication is that the contest will be as sharply fought as any in which the Blues have engaged this year. Edgerton is confident that they can do the same thing with the locals as they have done this year, but they did last, that of beating them by one point. Their hopes go even further than that; they expect to put it all over the lower city lads.

However, the Janessville players believe that they are all over the slump which they experienced at the Whitewater tournament. This last week has been one of prolonged rest, with no practice at all. The lay-off is looked to as an aid to success. Practice will be resumed this week to take away any staleness which the boys may have.

BREWERS START PRACTICING TODAY

Evansville, Ind., March 16.—First intensive spring training for the Brewers will start here today when Manager Jack Egan takes the helm. Egan was expected to arrive sometime in the night last night.

First Coach, shortstop, secured from the New York Giants, also is expected to arrive today. Egan picked Cooney up on a southern tour of the training camp. With Catcher (left) Infielder Butler, Outfielder Haynes and Pitcher North, just arrived, the Brewer squad was increased to eighteen men.

Business Manager Louis Nahn supervised the squad in their light workout at Boss's field Monday. A stiff March wind swept the field as the players frolicked.

NO LESE MAJESTY Washington papers recently gave wide space to the tale of a kitten, a very undiplomatic, mongrel kitten, that passed the sacred gates of the Executive Mansion and actually strolled into the inner temple where Senators may not go, nor yet ambassadors.

A kitten, in other words, saw the President.

And immediately a new precedent was established, worthy to be graven beside the one declaring that what may look at a king.

NOT RECOGNIZED A young lady was telling an interesting experience she had had in Europe and went into some detail describing the famous Cathedral at Chartres in France.

One of the listeners who had seen service as a canteen-worker, followed the account with a skeptical expression and finally felt it her duty to call a halt to what she felt sure was bluff for she knew the speaker had been working for the government in Washington during the war.

At last she spoke.

"Really, I didn't know you had been overseas," she remarked sarcastically.

The other quietly responded: "I wasn't overseas, but I studied, six years in France, before the war."

Delafield, Wis., March 16.—The cadet basketball schedule, St. John's Military academy, closed on Saturday, and the youngsters have had a most remarkable record.

Early in the season it was seen that the team was superior to anything of its own class, with the result that most of the games have had to be with minor colleges, athletic teams, etc. The results are as follows, and show without question the class of the St. John's boys:

VIAU'S RACERS MAY BE PLACED ON SALE

Lexington, Ky., March 16.—It is stated here that as a result of the death of Wilfred Viau, turfman, in Paris, the stud and racers of Viau in this country and France will be sold.

Among the horses is the 6 year old Omar Khayyam, winner of the Kentucky derby three years ago, upon which it is stated a price of $100,000 has been placed. Omar Khayyam has been retired to the stud and is now in Arthur B. Hancock's stables at Clarborne farm, Bourbon county.

Griffiths Believes Dempsey Will Win

New York, March 16.—Johnny Griffiths, welterweight boxer from Akron, O., whose ambition is to beat Jack Britton, the champion, has returned from Paris and London with three knockouts, one decision, and a draw to his credit.

While in Paris Griffiths said he saw a good deal of Georges Carpentier, the French champion. "He is very quick," Griffiths said, "and has got a punch, but in my opinion, would not stand a real chance against Dempsey. If it comes to a match between the two, I think that Carpentier might manage to last six rounds, but that would be his extreme limit."

McGraw Sends Two Back to Tall Grass

San Antonio, Tex., March 16.—Manager McGraw Sunday made the first cut in the roster of the Giants. He announced the release of Jimmy Cooney, shortstop, to the Milwaukee club and the return of Sid Ross, left handed pitcher, to San Antonio.

What's the thing to do about Clothes this spring?

EVERY man knows that clothes are high priced; and that poor ones cost about as much as the good ones.

What's a man going to do who wants to make his money go the farthest?

There's only one thing to do, buy good all-wool clothes; pay the price to get them. They'll save your money because all-wool wears longer; you won't have to buy so often.

We know; we've seen all kinds of clothing. Good stuff is always economy.

Hart Schaffner & Marx make clothes that really save for you; that's why we have them and why we talk so much about these clothes.

IF THEY DON'T SATISFY YOU YOU GET YOUR MONEY BACK

Spring Bids The World Revel In Things That Are New

Never will a curtain be lifted on a more beguiling assemblage of a new season's modes than those which will be presented in Janesville for the first time this week. Without, all nature begins to garb its self anew—within, the stores' FASHIONS will glorify Springtime with hosts of interpretations so lovely, so alluring, so original, as to satisfy, we are sure, even the most jaded fancy. All the newest, most clever innovations, choicest fabrics and colorings which have been gathered together for this gala event proclaim Janesville's displays in perfect readiness to answer milady's every Springtime demand.

Grand Combined Opening and Style Show FRIDAY AND SATURDAY MARCH 19-20

Included in these displays will be seen all the Spring Season's most fetching modes—SUITS, COATS, DRESSES, BLOUSES, MILLINERY, SHOES, MEN'S CLOTHING, FURNITURE, MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, ART GOODS. You are cordially invited to view the new things.

Unveiling of the Beautiful Show Windows Thursday Evening, March 18 at 7:30 P. M.

The most beautiful displays in window settings will be revealed when the curtains are drawn. A trip down town to see the windows will be well worth your while. The various window artists have produced many striking displays in the past but these will outclass and excel all that have gone before.
